

About EnviroScore® (www.enviroscore.com):

EnviroScore is the only company that uses a scoring system to assess environmental risk. EnviroScore serves various financial institutions and other corporate clients with environmental reviews and assistance with due diligence requirements. Its unique scoring system collects and synthesizes environmental data and location intelligence to serve business operations or customers requiring property site assessments. EnviroScore is a less expensive, easier-to-understand alternative to traditional reviews and allows for a broader range of uses.

The company is privately owned and headquartered in Baton Rouge, Louisiana.

EnviroScore Facts:

- EnviroScore is a patent-pending service that was developed in the year 2002.
- EnviroScore is a system that can be used as a “precursor” to current Phase I and Phase I AAI reports. EnviroScore eliminates the need for time-consuming and expensive assessments to determine environmental risk.
- EnviroScore’s scoring scale is 0-100, with 100 being the best. No property site has yet to obtain a perfect score and no site has been rated less than 10.
- EnviroScore uses five (5) main parameters to determine and predict risk regarding a business operation or property site. These include the type of business, previous history, compliance status, current operations and future uses or developments.
- EnviroScore is established to allow a broader range of reviews, saving customers money and to educate and inform businesses about environmental risks and standards.
